Ecology (from Greek:  $\acute{\alpha}\lambda\omicron\gamma\acute{\alpha}$ , "house", or "environment";  $\sigma\upsilon\lambda\lambda\omicron\gamma\acute{\alpha}$ , "study of") is the branch of biology which studies the interactions among organisms and their environment. Objects of study include interactions of organisms with each other and with abiotic components of their environment. Topics of interest include the biodiversity, distribution, biomass, and populations of organisms ...

The natural environment encompasses all living and non-living things occurring naturally, meaning in this case not artificial. The term is most often applied to the Earth or some parts of Earth. This environment encompasses the interaction of all living species, climate, weather and natural resources that affect human survival and economic activity. The concept of the natural environment can be ...

How does science describe an ecosystem? Samper: An ecosystem is defined as a habitat where a community of organisms—animals, people, and plants—interact with one another and with their physical environment. It includes other components such as soils, water, and nutrients that support the organisms living in an ecosystem.
