Group decision-making (also known as collaborative decision-making) is a situation faced when individuals collectively make a choice from the alternatives before them. The decision is then no longer attributable to any single individual who is a member of the group. This is because all the individuals and social group processes such as social influence contribute to the outcome.

Solar sails (also called light sails or photon sails) are a proposed method of spacecraft propulsion using radiation pressure exerted by sunlight on large mirrors. A useful analogy may be a sailing boat; the light exerting a force on the mirrors is akin to a sail being blown by the wind. High-energy laser beams could be used as an alternative light source to exert much greater force than would ...

Fig. 1 Schematic representations of photoirradiation for controlling molecular alignment. (A) Conventional photoalignment method via the interaction between linearly polarized light and photoresponsive dye molecules (red rod) and simultaneous cooperative effect to align LCs (yellow rod), where light is spatiotemporally uniform.(B) New concept proposed here for generating molecular alignment ...
